

As The Sword Turns

The Official Castle Wall Productions Newsletter

Current Clack

It is with great sadness that I have to make the next announcement: Jeff Baker and his family Chris, Brendon and Amy are leaving Castle Wall, Jeff and his family have been members for several years and Jeff has been my Vice President since I became President of Castle Wall. Jeff also was the lynch pin in the weapons team and has run that for several years. Unfortunately in these hard times decisions must be made based on priorities and Jeff had to make such a decision Jeff (and family) you will be sorely missed and if things change you are always welcome back any time. I would like to welcome back Carl, Sam and Stormy Cone to Castle Wall along with new members Bill And Julie Odler, Debra Colao and Jen G welcome all and a hardy Huzzah!

The year is coming to a close and we will be taking our Castle Wall Holiday break, eventually coming back for practice on JAN 8 2006 have your coats on and your sword arm ready because we will be heading into the year with full steam.

We need to buckle down and get ready for our next season because it will be here soon (before you realize it) and we need to be ready for it. Fights need to be ready, dialogue learned and cues memorized, only 15 Practices before our first show.

Practice Makes Perfect

As I said last newsletter we cannot sit back on our laurels and assume we have our fights done. It's way to early in the season for that and as a matter of fact if you should not be thinking that ever, (you can always make your fight better). With Jeff and family leaving that takes out a lot of fights that need to be re-choreographed and or relearned.

NO TME TO SLACK!

No one should be sitting around especially if you have never had a fight in a show ever. If this is your first year fighting you better do your best to make your fight the best it can be. As the season approaches fights will be cut if they don't make the grade, that sounds harsh but there is around 26 practices that you could have used to make that fight(s) as good as you could before show season starts.

Now on to attendance: it is a common knowledge that stuff happens but it does not take a whole lot to call Eric, Jerry or Myself and let us know you will not make it to practice BEFORE practice starts, hopefully at least a day in advance. Castle Wall IS a business and with three no calls/no shows in a row you will be dismissed from CWP (read your rules and regulations). Not showing impacts every person that you fight and then some.

From The Heralds Horn

I would like to apologize for several errors in the Sept and Oct news letter, Its been issues with computers and formatting and hopefully with this issue all is well. The Nov calendar was misprinted (it was 2006) and did not cause too much confusion.

Not much new here except we will be working on PR with weddings, I have already started the ball rolling with that somewhat and hopefully it will be picking up in the future.

Tales Of The Anvil

The weapons team will need a new lead and members to work on that team, for now we have wrapped the duties into the armor team, so until we get solid ownership for weapons the armor team will take care of the weapons. We did get someone to fix our broken weapons Loren from Fjellborg. Huzzah to you sir! Staffs are the main agenda for weapons this season, so look for newly wrapped staffs to appear.

The Tailors Bench

I will be sewing costumes after the holidays, when you are given a costume please try it on right away and I will check it for fit(long enough, big enough to move etc.) You then should wear it to practice as often as possible 1) to get used to the fit and 2)to see if the costume fits. A note if you are wearing a skirt Friar Tuck, Marion for example you MUST practice all of your fights in that costume, trust me it will only be to your advantage to do so. Happy Holidays!

Ring Time

The armor team is hard at work continuing to weave chain mail for our knights. The armor team has batted around the idea of t-shirts for those members on the team; they would have the armor team mascot (see Newsletter VOL I ISSUE 1) and a checklist of sorts on the back, we'll see if that pans out.

Now with the armor team taking up the duties of the weapons team we will be meeting on an accelerated schedule come January, watch the calendar, of course this could change if we obtain a weapons team and a weapons team lead.

Merchants Booth

We have several projects planned for the new year stay tuned for this section to see what they are, but until then have a Happy Holiday!

Castle Custodian's Closet

Yes, Castle Wall has a Props Lead and Team and we need your help. Currently we do have some pieces of wood 1/4 & 2/4, but we need allot more, so if anyone has some wood they wish to donate, or if you even wish to help build some of the props that we will be using in shows please let me know. Right now the Props Team is working on crates to hold fake food, and a stock to put those people who "misbehave". I have not scheduled any specific times for working on these items at this time, I have been doing a little bit here and there, however for the next news letter I will try to have a schedule for everyone wishing to help. For any questions, or just need to get a hold of me, I can be reached at (303) 521-2816.

Wagons Wheel

The bus is an ongoing issue that does not seem to be getting better, we will see the out come of that in the next couple of months and we will be concentrating on the vanas a priority.
